ILLUSTRATOR & DESIGNER

My illustration work is rooted in narrative, with reference to silent comics and printmaking, in particular risograph, screenprinting and etching. I also work in three dimensions, creating brooches out of porcelain.

THE DISTANCE OF THE MOON

R I S O G R A P H
S I L E N T C O M I C

The Distance of the Moon is an otherworldly short story written by Italo Calvino in 1965, based around the idea that the moon used to be very close to the earth, and groups of people would jump between them, collecting the moon-milk and throwing it back to earth.

I loosely illustrated this story as a four page silent comic, printed as an A3 risograph. The original drawings were done entirely in pencil and edited minimally digitally. The prints work both individually and as a set.

PORCELAIN BROOCHES

All brooches are handcut out of a sheet of rolled porcelain clay and painted with a decorating slip. They are then fired once to 1240 degrees, backed with a brass clasp and mounted on 350gsm G.F. Smith card, with a hand screenprinted label. Due to the nature of the process each brooch is a little different.
